HOW WOMEN REST.

Who Eventually Learn to "Stight"

How differently men and women indulge themselves in what is called a Graphic. "I guess I'll sit down and mend these stockings and rest awhile," says the wife; but her husband throws himself upon the easy-lounge, or sits back in his arm-chair, with hands at MICHAEL DAVITT STILL TALKING. rest and feet placed horizontally upon another chair. The result is that his whole body gains full benefit of the half hour he allows himself from work, and the wife only receives that indirect help which comes from change of occupation. A physician would tell her that taking even ten minutes in a horizontal position, as a change from standing or sitting at work, would prove more beneficial to her than any of her make-shifts at reating. Busy women have a habit of keeping on their feet just as long at they can, in spite of backache and warning pains. As they grow older they see the folly of permitting such drafts upon their strength, and learn to take things easier, let what will happen. They say: "I used to think I must do thus and so, but I've grown wiser and learned to slight things." The first years of housekeeping are truly the hardest, for untried and unfamiliar cares are almost daily thrust upon the whole body gains full benefit of the Blows the Top of His Head Off With a Gun. The San Francisco Bulletin of the 28th inst. says: Yesterday afternoon John Bretch, cook of Battery L, First Artillery Regiment, stationed at Black Point, after carefully completing his work, retired to a little room off the kitchen, and sitting on the edge of a bed placed the muzzle of a gun to his forehead, and with his toe pulled the trigger. The whole top of his head was blown off, and the room presented was blown off, and the room presented a frightful appearance after the commission of the deed. It is believed that Bretch must have been seized with a sudden fit of insanity. He was 42 years of age, and a native of Wurtemburg, Germany. Michael Davitt Continues.

By Cable and Associated Press.] LONDON, Oct. 29.-Michael Davitt esumed his address before the Parnell Commission to-day. He referred to the action of the Chicago Convention as disproving the assertion that the Clan-na Gael was actively allied with the League authorities. Of the articles on "Parnellism and crime," printed in the London Times, he said they were wilfully invented and garbled quotations from the American papers.

He admitted that the expressions of some of the speakers at Chicago were bitter against England, but the con-vention was held during a period when the League was under the ban of suppression, when a number of prominent members of the Parnell party were in prison and when force had crushed out the constitutional movement, hence the speakers were laboring under great excitement. "Parnellism and crime!" the liars catecism, distorted everything relating to the movements of the Irish in America. He instanced as a base-less lie, the statement that he met chiefs of the American assassination party while in the United States and concerted with them to form an Irish federation, and that Parnell assisted in this scheme. He (Davitt) often repudiated the policy of revenge ad-vocated by the Extremists in America. Davitt also said erroneous reports were Davitt also said erroneous reports were current respecting the Clan-na-Gael which organization was not an assassination society, nor a more secret or-ganization than was the Order of free Masons in Great Britain.

Baltimore Politics.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 28 .- A sensation has been caused here in political circles by the confession of two notoriously desperate characters, professing to be the authors of election frauds committed at various times since 1875.

William Harig alleges he aided ballot-stealing, by which F. C. Latrobe was made Mayor of Baltimore when Henry M. Warfield was really elected, and that Latrobe rewarded him by ap-pointing him fireman at the City Hall. He also claims that he changed a majority of 450 for Governor to 1,760 for John Lee Carroll (Dem.), who was llegally declared elected and served Harig publicly announces that he holds a letter from Senator Gorman, Isador Raynor, Barnes Compton and other leading Democrate promoting these frauds, and claims to have received money from Gorman to pur-chase votes and did so at $2 each. Harig also charged that Burke, the bank burglar, was allowed to escape by Warden Weyler for political reasons in the interest of Gorman and his friends. Other tough characters make equally startling confessions, that, if true, should send them to the peniter-tiary. The stories are told on the eve of an election, and are consequently received with but small credence.

Mrs. Charles Crocker.

By the untimely death of Mrs. Charles Crocker the community suffers a severe loss, and it is but fitting that some mention should be made of the service to humanity which she has been during many years. It is seldom, says the San Francisco Post, that a lady possessed of the wealth which Mrs. Crocker has had at her disposal has busied herself with the sorrows and misfortunes of her less fortunate brothers and sisters to the same extent as she has done. Her ears were never closed to the arpeals of the suffering, and her public donations to charity, which are a household word in this State, were more than surpassed by her private and almost secret benevolences. Truly may it be said that her right hand did not know what her left hand was doing, so quietly were her good deeds performed, but there are scores and hundreds of men and women in California who can testify that they found a friend in Mrs. Crocker when the whole world had seemed to pass them by and ignore them.

No higher praise can be awarded to any human being than to say, truthfully, that charity was the ruling motive of his or her life, The enormous wealth which came to her hands did not seal up the fountains of kindness and good will, as is too often the case. On the contrary, she rejoiced in her wealth, not for its own sake, but for the opportunity it gave her of doing good to others. Such a life as that of Mrs. Crocker goes far towards reconciling the world to the disparity of fortune which exists, for she regarded herself not as the owner of a vast accumulation of wealth, but as a steward for humanity, bound to make the best possible use of her fortune. Mrs. Charles Crocker was a noble woman, a kind woman, and a charthe topic.

RAFFERTY AT BEDFORD.

An Irish Tourist's Experience in a Quaint Kentucky Village.

People in the East vill hardly believe it when they are told that Kentucky has a county in which only one man was ever killed, but it is a fact notwithstanding, says a Radford (Kv.) letter to the New York a Bedford (Ky.) letter to the New York. Sun. A number of years ago two intoxi-cated men fought in the town and one was shot to death. That was the only serious crime ever committed in Trimble County.

Trimble is a real Arcadia, Bedford, the county-seat, being situated almost midway between two large caties, forty miles from Louisville and sixty miles from Cincinnati, fifteen miles from the nearest railroad. Yet the strife of the outer world has never the strife of the outer world has never reached here. Crime of any kind is practically unknown. The people are all small farmers and fruit-growers, descendants of Virginians and Marylanders who settled here a hundred years ago, and are scrupulously honest. The last lawyer who settled in Bedford came near starving to death, and went to Kansas a half-dozen years ago. There is a court-house in this town, but it is needed only for the preservation of the county records, title deeds and such things. At the last term of the criminal court there was only one case to be tried, and that was was only one case to be tried, and that was on a charge of petty larceny. But it was proven that the man was not guilty.

Every resident of this county is of pure English or Scotch descent. There is not a foreign-born person in Trimble. Although so close to both Louisville and Cincinnati, German or Irishman would be a curiosity in Bedford. Last spring an Irishman, Mike Rafferty, from Louisville, came to Bedford. How he ever got here or why he came no one knows, but soon after his arrival word was circulated that a foreigner had come to town. Rafferty went into the grocery to buy fifteen cents' worth of cheese for din-ner. The proprietor stared curiously at him, but gave him the cheese, and he sat down in a chair to eat it. In a few minutes a crowd of small boys entered, and ranging themselves in a straight line in front of the Irishman, gazed at him with the most evident cariosity. Rafferty thought there must be something the matter with his personal appearance, and asked the proprietor if there was any thing wrong. The latter re-plied in the negative. Mike then wanted to know why all the boys were looking at him.

"Why, don't you understand?" said the merchant. "As soon as you bought that cheese I sent out word that there was an Irishman here. An Irishman don't come to Bedford every day. In fact, its been ten years since one was here until you came. You are the first Irishman those boys ever you are a saw, and of course you are a saw and yo saw, and of course you are a show to Rafferty whistled and then grew indig-nant. He said he was neither a heathen Chinee, nor aid he belong to a museum. He left the store, followed by an increasing crowd of small boys and some rather large ones. At the street corner he met a little girl carrying a bucket of water. The and this may be said with all sin- weather was warm and he asked her for cerity of Mrs. Charles Crocker. adrink. She locked up, for the first time in her life saw a stranger's face, shrieked, dropped the bucket of water, and field in dismay. That was enough for the Irishman. He set out for the nearest railroad station, fifteen miles away, and never stopped tramping until he got there. For over a mile a crowd followed him at a respectable distance. Since then Bedford has not been troubled with strangers.

A Girl's Composition on Boys.

Boys are men that have got as big as their papas, and girts is young women that will be young laties by and by. Man was made before woman. When God looked at Adam He said to Himself: "Well, I guess I can do better if I try again," and then He made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than Adam that there have been more women than men ever since. Boys are a trouble. They are wearing on every thing but soap.

Baltimore, Vt., is said to be the smallest town in the United States. It is perched on the side of Hawks' Nest, and years ago was part of Cavendish, on the other side of the mountain; but voters had to go fifteen miles to cast their ballots, so a petition was circulated and the town of Baltimore was set off. In 1880 the population was seventy-six, and of these about a dozen were voters—not enough to fill the town offices, for there are twenty offices to fill.

Coxy Quarters Occupied by One of New York's Single Gentlemen.

A bachelor spartment in one of our uptown flats, says the Art Age, is gotten up with much taste. The little hall is entered through a double door of oak, with stainedglass panels and antique bronze hinges and lock. A lamp of hammered iron-work hangs from the ceiling, which with the walls are blue-gray in tone. An old oaken settle and a carved table stand on the opposite sides and the walls are lined with proof engray-ings, appropriately framed.

As one enters the drawing-room the eye wanders from the heavy portieres, which resemble old Florentine tapestry, to the cushions of old-gold plush on the long, low divan, the French plaques, the delft jars and the Italian bronzes. The fire-place is almost hidden by the spread peacock's tail mounted on a little gilt stand, and on the mantel-shelf are majolica jars and Sevres candlesticks. The wall hangings are of white and gold canvas which, while the white and gold canvas which, while the owner laughs about their cheapness, are certainly very effective, and the great shade of red Chinese silk which robs the prosaic gas chandelier of its natural ugliness, is a home invention. It bathes the whole room in roseate tints and lights up the banjos, lutes and mandolins which are suspended over the cors, the quaint Italian figures on brackets and the dark velvet plaques on the canvas walls.

plaques on the canvas walls.

The piano is draped with white and pink Roman brocatelle and covered with sheets of music. Above the piano hangs two beau-tiful pastel heads of Roman peasant women. The perfume of roses and the aroma of cigar smoke struggle for supremacy in this delightful room, which opens into a library beyond. Low book-cases line the walls, which are covered with 'terra cotta cartridge paper. On the cherry wood mantel are silver candialebra standing on either the country of th side of a quaint old silver clock. On the ceiling, which is a modeling of creams and light blues, are stenciled very minute designs in different tints, relieved with gold to produce light effects. The furniture of this room is of cherry, upholstered in marcon and pale blue.

The dining-room is furnished in antique oak and cherry. The wall is of a buff tint, with bronze and gold stenciling. Six feet of wainscoting, composed of cherry and antique oak panels, surround the room, and in keeping with the wainscoting is a handsome cherry sideboard, flanked by astique oak chairs, upholstered in bronze-green leather. The curtains are of old tapestry, and a quaint old-time look reigns in this

SMITH'S HASTY FLIGHT.

He Left Suddenly When He Found Mr Jones Was in Earnest. Atlantians are not through talking about the Calhoun-Williamson duel yet, says the pocurred in Atlanta a few years ago," re-marked Captain George B. Forbes. "Not many outsiders knew of the affair at the time, but those who did know of it were highly amused. It wouldn't be fair to give Jones and the other Smith. They were both society young men, and when Smith imagined that Jones had insulted him he called in a friend, who recommended the code as the only remedy. Smith was particularly pleased with the advice of his friend, but finally challenged Jones, on the assurance of his (Smith's) friend that the thing was to be arranged so that there would be no bloodshed. The friend of the challenged party was let into the secret, and he induced Jones to accept. The duel was to take place outside the city limits, and pistols were the weapons. Smith knew that they were to be loaded with blank cartridges, but Jones did not. That's where the fun was supposed to come in. The men were placed in position, at ten paces, and while the seconds were fooling with the pistols, the surgeons, who were also in the joke,

WAR AMONG WORDS.

Some That Are Overworked and Others
That Are Neglected.

I was awakened in the middle of the night by a disturbance in the library, writes a Washington Post correspondent. It did not seem to be the noise of burglars. It was more like the murmuring sound of many tongues engaged in spirited debate. I listened closely and concluded that it must be some sort of a discussion being held by the words in my big unabridged dictionary. Creeping softly to the door I stood and listened. "I don't care," said the little word Of: "I may not be very big, but that is no reason why every body should take advantage of me. I am the most mercless-ly overworked word in the whole dictionary, and there is no earthly reason for it, either. People say they 'consider of' and 'approve of' and 'accept of' and 'admit of' all sorts of things. Then they say 'all of us,' and 'both of them' and 'first of all,' and tell about

'looking out of the window, or cutting a piece of bread 'off of' the loaf, until I am utterly tired out.'

"Pshaw!" said the word Up, "I am not much bigger than you and I do twice as much work, and a good deal of it needlesstate." much work, and a good deal of it needlessly, too. People 'wake up' in the morning, and 'get up' and 'shake up' their beds and 'dress up' and 'wash up' and 'draw up' to the table, and 'eat up' and 'drink up' their breakfast. Then they 'jump up' from the table and 'hurry up' to 'go up' to the corner, where the street-car driver 'pulls up' his horses and the passengers 'ascend up' the steps and 'go up' into the front seats, and the conductor 'takes up' the tickets. All this is done even before, people 'get up' town and 'take up' their day's work. From that time until they 'put up' their books and that time until they 'put up' their books and 'shut up' their offices I do more work than 'shut up' their offices I do more work than any two words in this book; and even after business hours I am worked until people 'lock up' their houses and 'go up' to bed and 'cover themselves up' and 'shut up' their eyes for the night. It would take a week to tell what I have to 'put up' with in a day, and I am a good deal 'worked up' over it."

"I agree that both Up and Of are very much overworked," said the word Stated, "but I think I myself deserve a little sympathy. I am doing not only my own legitimate work, but also that which ought to be done by my friend Said. Nobody 'says' any thing nowadays; he always 'states' it. "Yes," chi ped in the funny little word Pun, "these are very 'stately' times."

Some of the words laughed at this, but Humor said: "Pun is a simpleton."

"No," said Wit; "he is a fellow of dupile-itles"

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

"I do a great deal of needless work," said the word But. "People say they have no doubt 'but that' it will rain, and that they shouldn't wonder 'but what' it would snow, until I don't know 'but' I shall The Prince of Wales Thought To Be Incurably 111.

since the burial of the old Kaiser, there will be at least one family which will conceal deep sadness under the conventional smiles. I am assured on exceptional authority that the Prince of Wales has been warned by his physicians that he has Bright's disease incurably fastened upon him, and that the extension of his trip to Egypt, which was not originally intended, was at the same time recommended by these advisers as a diversion which these advisers as a diversion which might assist to keep his mind from dangerous gloom. It it is believed that the Princess and the rest of the royal family have been informed as to the state of the Prince's health."

Now, look at me. Here I am ready and willing to perform my part in the speech of the day, but almost eyery body passes me by and employs my awkward friend Balance. It is the commonest thing in the world to hear people say they, will pay the "balance" of a debt or will sleep the balance of the night."
"I suffer considerably from this same kind of neglect," said the word Deem, "Nobody ever 'deems' a thing beautiful any more; it is always 'considered' beautiful, when, in fact, it is not considered at carnival possible at a time to be set later. Financial backing in abundance has already been secured and every indication points to the most successful carnival in the history of the North-

"You're no worse off than I am," said the little word So; "that fellow Such is doing all my work. People say there never was 'such' a glorious country as this, when, of course, they mean there never was 'so' glorious a country elsewhere." San Francisco Weekly Call was 'so' glorious a country elsewhere." ""

I saw there was likely to be no end to this discussion, since half the words in the dictionary were making efforts to put in their complaints, so I returned to my couch, Gazette and Stockman and I will leave it to any person who has read this account to say whether I had not $2.50 Per Year dready heard enough to make me or any DAILY GAZETTE has never been given the public; the proprietor of the establishment in which it occurred keeping the facts from the reporters for fear of hurting his trade. They are about as follows: James Harley, the victim, had just recovered from an attack of delirium tremens. He had been a regular sot and was thoroughly soaked with alcohol. His last attack of 'jim-jams' was the third he had undergone within a few months. On the morning in question he had started on another spree. At about eleven o'clock in the day he had about all the liquor on board he was able to carry. Stepping into a saloon on one of the principal streets he called for a swig of "bug juice," which was promptly refused, the bartender noting the condition of the man and remembering his late battle with the snakes. Harley accovided and turned to a gas jet to light his pipe. A second later there was a drunken moah, a flash of alcoholic flame, and Harley fell heavily on the floor, his head and neck yalled in smoke, while blue jets of flame were issuing from his ears, mouth and nostrils.
